WEATHER—For Kentucky
Thursday, partly overcast.

HOPKINSVILLE KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, JANUARY 18, 1917.

VOL. 39—No. 8

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Mrs. Ollie James has returned from Japan, after a three months' visit to the Post Wheelers.

Thos. W. Lawson has succeeded in his desire to "start something," but where it will land him remains to be seen.

A small boy in Louisville died a few days ago from blood poison resulting from a mosquito bite last August.

The year 1917 is already making heavy drafts on the big men. Buffalo Bill one week, Admiral Dewey the next and several other notables are not feeling very well.

Admiral Dewey will go down in history as America's greatest naval hero, winning a decisive naval battle without the loss of a man. Paul Jones, Decatur, Farragut, Porter and Schley must yield the front rank to the hero of Manila Bay.

With the view to increasing its frontier guards the Swiss Federal Council has issued an order mobilizing three divisions which have not yet been called to the colors. No violation of the nation's neutrality is looked for, says the mobilization announcement.

Switzerland, one of the greatest dairy countries of the world, is suffering from a milk famine. The export of condensed milk to the belligerent countries has increased so enormously that the domestic demand for fresh milk can no longer be supplied and there is a vigorous demand to cheese it.

At a meeting of the Louisville Bar Association, a resolution was adopted providing for an investigation of the Murray mob affair, with a view to arriving at the truth in regard to the criticism of Judge C. H. Bush. An investigation will disclose the fact that Judge Bush has been grossly misrepresented by certain papers.

The King of Sweden, addressing the Riksdag, said Sweden had been able thus far to avoid being drawn into the war, but that the Swedish people could not shut their eyes to the profound gravity of the present hour. He asked the Riksdag to collaborate with the Government for the strengthening of the national defense.

Denny Smith and Jewell Smith have both issued statements corroborating the statements made in Judge Bush's interview in the Kentuckian, giving the straight of the Murray disorder especially in regard to the parts they played or were called upon to play in settling the outbreak.

Russia's Immense Progress.

With American interest so focussed upon David Lloyd George as the organizer of British resources and the discoverer of a new type of business statesmanship, it is easy to ignore, through lack of available information, what is going on in the most colossal of all modern nations. The war has brought a great ferment into the life of Russia. Education is to become universal and compulsory. The prohibition of vodka goes with a general reform of popular conditions. The press is more liberal than ever before. There is to be a new Russia, and already the marks of progress are manifest. This new Premier, Alexander Theodorovich Trepoff, is in sympathy with everything that is associated with sane progress in Russia. He helped to create the Duma, and has studied the parliaments of western Europe. He has had much to do in provincial government. It is he who, since the war began, has laid out the great scheme of new railroads and canals; and as Minister of Transportation he has been trying to repair the blunders of the first month's struggle. He is rapidly building 25,000 miles of railroad on a ten-year program. He will co-operate with Lloyd George and Briand in working out allied plans.—From "Progress of the World," in the American Review of Reviews for January, 1917.

BIG BANKERS TO TESTIFY

Morgan, Davison, Vanderlip, Lipper and Bache, New York Financiers.

MRS. VISCONTI LOCATED

Lawson Tells Committee Either He or Chairman Henry Committed Perjury.

Washington, Jan. 17.—Spreading a dragnet over the financial district of New York, the house rules committee today extended the peace note leak investigation to a general inquiry into the stock market.

As the first step in enlarging the scope of the hearings the committee subpoenaed J. P. Morgan, H. P. Davison, F. A. Vanderlip, Arthur Lipper, secretary of L. C. Wezler and J. S. Bache, New York financiers.

MRS. VISCONTI RETURNS.

Vying in interest with the summoning of the financiers was that of Mrs. Ruth Thompson Visconti, who, Thomas W. Lawson says, told him Secretary Tumulty and others "had profited in the stock market by the leak and that William W. Price, one of the white house correspondents, had acted as the "go between" in the affair and received $6,000 for his work."

Lawson, whose sensational testimony Monday aroused the committee to go to the depths of the leak rumors, occupied the witness stand again reviewing and supplementing his statement.

At the outset Lawson attacked Rep. Henry's denial of his testimony and emphatically declared that he or Henry was guilty of rank perjury. In a characteristic outburst Lawson shouted his reiteration that he had told the truth.

"When there is a direct difference of opinion—stronger than a question of veracity—" said Lawson, "it is perfectly obvious that one or the other is committing perjury,—deliberate, rank perjury. Unless your chairman said the things that I have said he did, I am guilty of foul perjury and I am unfit to be here or anywhere outside the bars of a jail."

Lawson again brought the names of Secretary Lansing, Count von Bernstorff and Bernard Baruch into the testimony as the men Chairman Henry had told him he had heard "leak" rumors about, and elaborated on his story told regarding Henry's alleged statements concerning them.

Lawson was temporarily dismissed, but ordered to remain in Washington. More than a score of witnesses were waiting to be heard. Among them were McAdoo, Tumulty, Price, Warburg and others whom Lawson mentioned as having knowledge of the leak. All have issued statements repudiating his testimony.

High Paper Prices Reached.

Chicago, Jan. 17.—Belief that the crest of the high price of print paper has been reached was expressed by members of Western Paper Dealers' Association at the annual meeting of the organization here last night. Members asserted the high prices would decline gradually with a "seeming approach of the end of the European war." Arthur Van Vlack, of Chicago, was chosen president, and Arthur Fulage, St. Louis, vice president.

GEN. LEE'S BIRTHDAY

At the meeting of the Christian County Chapter, U. D. C., at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow, at the Library, there will be a special program appropriate to the birthday of Gen. Robert E. Lee, which is Jan. 19th.

Of the 2005 marriage licenses issued in Jeffersonville last year, a big proportion were to runaway couples from Kentucky.

JUDGE BUSH A BRAVE MAN

Declares the Hopkinsville Bar and Commends Him For Saving Prisoner's Life.

At a meeting of the Hopkinsville Bar Association which was held Monday afternoon strong resolutions were adopted denouncing all adverse newspaper criticism which has been made of Judge Bush since the excitement at Murray last week and commanding him for his bravery at that time.

The resolution reads: "Whereas, statements have appeared in the Louisville Courier-Journal, Louisville Herald, and other public papers, regarding the recent trouble at Murray, Ky., growing out of the trial of Lubie Martin, indicted for the killing of Guthrie Diuguid, which seriously reflected upon the honor, integrity and personal courage of Honorable C. H. Bush, the presiding judge of said Court:

"Now therefore we, the members of the Hopkinsville bar in meeting duly assembled, and being advised of the true facts of the case, do hereby declare and denounce all of said statements so reflecting on the said Bush to be altogether unfounded, untrue, and a malicious libel, and be it further resolved:

"That we, the bar of Hopkinsville, hereby reaffirm our confidence and respect in Hon. C. H. Bush, and command him for saving the life of this negro defendant, and call attention to the fact that he is one Circuit Judge in this section of Kentucky, and in the South that has placed his own life in danger for the protection of prisoners that might be on trial before his Court, and we hereby state that we feel that the full credit for saving this negro's life is due Judge Bush.

"That we hereby condemn as false and malicious all statements that have been published in any newspaper that reflect upon the honor or good name of Judge Bush, as he acted with great bravery and fearlessness in the protection of the defendant's life.

"That we command Judge Bush for saving the defendant's life, and know that he is a brave man, and we hereby place full credit for thwarting the will of the furious mob on Judge Bush, who protected this defendant at the risk of his own life.

"Be it hereby resolved that a copy of these resolutions be printed in all of the papers of this district, and a copy sent to all of the papers in the state that have criticised Judge Bush, and also a copy be spread on the records of the Christian Circuit Court and a copy be presented to Judge Bush.

"Given under our hands on this the 15th day of January, 1917.

(Signed) THOS. P. COOK,
Approved: IRA D. SMITH,
W. P. Winfree, JOHN STITES,
Chairman. Committee."

DAMAGE SUIT FOR $2,000

Plaintiff Alleges That He Was Assaulted and Badly Injured.

V. P. Vanhooser has filed suit against E. H. Pepper for $2,000 damages. Plaintiff alleges that on July 17, last, defendant unlawfully assaulted, beat, bruised and kicked him about the head and body with the butt-end of a knife and with his feet. He further charges that he was incapacitated from work for some time and pays $50 additional for lost time. The parties reside in the northern part of the county.

GOES TO LOUISVILLE.

HERO OF MANILA BAY

Ranking Naval Officer of The World Passes Away in His Eightieth Year.

GENERAL BREAKDOWN

Flags on All American Naval Vessels Half Masted—Funeral Probably Saturday.

Washington, Jan. 17.—Admiral George Dewey, the nation's Spanish war hero and by priority of grade, the ranking naval officer of the world, died at his home here last night in his eightieth year. He had not been conscious since yesterday when he lapsed into coma, still believing that in a few days he would be back at his desk in the navy department.

A general breakdown was the cause of death. Mrs. Dewey and the admiral's only son, George Dewey, were at the bedside tonight. They had known since yesterday there was no hope.

The admiral died at 5:56 p.m. President Wilson and Sec. Daniels were notified at once and the news was flashed by wireless to American naval vessels and stations all over the world. The message carried orders that all flags be half masted.

Admiral George Dewey, "hero of Manila Bay," fought and won the first great American navy battle against a foreign foe since the war of 1812.

His whole life was full of honorable achievement from the days of the civil war down to the time when, as the head of the general board, he began the last chapter of his work by laying plans for the defense of his country in time of war. His life was a striking exemplification of the possibilities of a career based upon the exact and intelligent performances of every routine duty which molds a man on inflexible lines of duty and honor.

One of the curious freaks of fortune in Dewey's case was that for perhaps the first and only time in his naval career he was disposed to protest against the edict of the navy department which carried him into the Far East, where he was destined to perform the greatest feat of his life and to win imperishable renown.

That was back in 1858 when the war clouds were gathering and Dewey felt that he was being "shelved," that the war with Spain was to be fought out in the gulf of Mexico and in the Caribbean sea and that he, distant by half the circumference of the globe, would stand no chance of winning glory, for at that moment no thought whatever had been given to the Philippines. But he took his orders and like a true sailor obeyed them. The result is a page of history under date of May 1, 1898.

Contrary to the Spanish expectations, Dewey sailed into Manila Bay on the night of April 30 and in the morning of the next day he annihilated Admiral Montojo's squadron, destroying eleven warships and capturing all other vessels and all the land batteries without the loss of a man on the American side.

Upon his triumphant return to the United States he was feted by the nation. His admirers presented him with a beautiful home in the national capital. Congress gave him an engraved sword, and raised him from the rank of commodore to rear-admiral and then to full rank of the admiralty of the navy.

Admiral Dewey was the third American to reach that pinnacle of naval rank. Farragut was the first and Porter the second. It was under Farragut that Dewey received his first baptism in war.

"Valuable as the training of Ann Arbor was, it was poor schooling beside that of serving under Farragut in time of war." Admiral Dewey once said, "Whenever I have been in a difficult situation or in the midst of such confusion of details that the simple and right thing to do seemed hazy,

RUSSIANS & RUMANIANS

Believed Second Big Drive in France Discussed at War Council in London.

Still at Grips Along the Front

In Rumania, With Conflicting Reports.

London, Jan. 17.—It is officially announced that during Monday and Tuesday Premier Lloyd-George and his war cabinet had a series of important conferences with Gen. Nivelle, the French commander in chief, and Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, commander in chief of the British forces in France.

PRESS WAR SUMMARY.

There is a possibility that another big offensive by the entente allies in Belgium and France is in contemplation. A two days' conference has been held in London between Premier Lloyd George and his war council and the British commander in chief.

Aside from Rumania, quiet continues to prevail on all the other fighting fronts where there have been only bombardments and operations by small detachments. No mention is made by either Berlin or Petrograd of the battle begun last week in the Riga region and which for several days had seemed to be decreasing in intensity. Berlin reports engagements south of Smorgon which lies between Vilna and Minsk.

Hard fighting continues in the region of Vadeni, southwest of Galatz, in the Rumanian theater. The Russians on both sides of Fundeni suffered heavy casualties in two attacks delivered against the German line, to Berlin. In one of the attacks Russian detachments entered German trenches but later were expelled. Another Russian attack was delivered against the Teutonic allies between the Kasino and Suchitza valleys. It also was repulsed, the Teutons taking 200 prisoners.

READY FOR BUSINESS

The Davis Obelisk Will Tower 351 Feet Towards the Sky.

Gen. Bennett H. Young states that the excavation at the Jefferson Davis Park, for the foundations of the obelisk, have struck solid rock and have been found altogether satisfactory. Gen. Young again says that the obelisk will be 351 feet high and will be the second highest monument in the world, only the Washington monument reaching higher than it. Gen. Young says the work will be pushed at once.

Lyle-Adams.

A marriage license was issued Monday to Lawrence A. Lyell and Miss Rosie Lee Adams, young people residing in North Christian, near the Hopkins county line. The wedding is scheduled for Saturday. Miss Adams is 20 years of age and the daughter of Mr. James Adams. Mr. Lyell is also 20 years old and is a son of Mr. Frank Lyell.

THURSDAY, JAN. 18

The American minister to Rumania, Charles J. Vopicka, whose withdrawal from Bucharest was ordered by the German government, is going to Berlin to await instructions from the state department at Washington respecting his future course.

For every 1,000 houses, with or without attached stores, in Berlin, no less than sixty-six, it is said, stand empty as a result of the war, according to the statistical bureau of Berlin.
The total number of empty buildings has reached 39,863.

Lieut. Simpson, commanding the torpedo boat flotilla at Baton Rouge, became indignant at the "insult to the service" by the refusal of Louisiana girls to dance with the sailors at a dance given at the casino in their honor. Lieut. Simpson was only prevented from requesting the Secretary of the Navy from ordering his flotilla elsewhere by the promise of Mayor Grouchy that a public apology would be offered. Perhaps the Baton Rouge girls were disgruntled because there were no rear admirals on hand.

Dr. Alfred Zimmermann, the German foreign minister, informed The Associated Press that in his opinion, the entente reply to President Wilson's peace note bars the possibility for the present of the further German steps to bring about peace. In particular, he said, it precluded any direct annunciation by Germany of her peace conditions, in answer to the terms set forth in the latest entente note. Dr. Zimmermann, asserted, however, that the answer of the entente to the president did not finally and completely close the door to later efforts for peace, before one side or the other was completely crushed.

The Mexican-American joint commission, which failed to effect an adjustment of the question at issue between Mexico and the United States after a series of conferences that began four months ago, was formally dissolved Monday. Secretary of the Interior Lane and the other members of the American commission, Dr. J.
R. Mott and Judge George Gray told the Mexicans that they had recommended to President Wilson the dispatch to Mexico of Ambassador Fletcher and the withdrawal of the American troops from Chihuahua. The Americans impressed upon the Mexicans that with the dissolution of the commission, the Mexican problem reverted to President Wilson.

Rejuvenating Rubber.
Rubber that has lost its elasticity may be rejuvenated, according to the Journal de Pharmacie et de Chimie, by bath of glycerin mixed with 25 times its volume of distilled water and heated to 70 degrees centigrade and then drying it with filter paper.

Really Careful.
Natalie, aged five years, for the first time planted some pony seeds in small boxes. One evening she rushed to water them, and on her return, her mother said: "You know, after a rain, you don't have to water them." Natalie's reply was startling: "Oh, I take them in when it rains!"

Small Girl's Advice.
Little Mabel, four years old, refused to sit still to have her picture taken.
Her exasperated father finally put her firmly in the chair and whispered in her ear, "If you don't sit still I'll buy another little girl." But Mabel, who had three sisters, called out, "Don't do it, pa; buy a boy."

Stopped Those Pains.

Copper Hill, Va.—Mrs. Ida Conner, of this place, says: "For years, I had a pain in my right side, and was very sick with womanly troubles.
I tried different doctors but could get no relief. I had given up all hope of ever getting well. I took Cardui, and it relieved the pain in my side, and now I feel like a new person. It is a wonderful medicine."

Many women are completely worn-out and discouraged on account of some womanly trouble. Are you?
Take Cardui, the woman's tonic. Its record shows that it will help you.
Why wait? Try it today. Ask your druggist about it.—Advertisement.

Persian Horses.

The native breed of horses in Persia is widely known throughout the East. There are three types: The Turcoman, celebrated for its strength in the North; the Arab in the South, and the Persian, a cross between the other strains. The last named is sturdier than the Turcoman, and makes a good, rough hack. However, the animal most frequently encountered is the Yabu, a serviceable beast, which can be bought at a very low price.

True Kindness.

Experience proves that kindness, as distinguished from personal affection, which is quite another thing, does not generally come by spontaneous growth so much as by reflection and the cultivation of a larger sympathy.—H. N.
Oxenham.

Neglected Colds Grow Worse.

A cough that rakes and irritates
the throat may lead to a serious chronic cough, if neglected. The healing pine balsams in Dr. Bell's breathing will be easier, and the antiseptic properties will kill the germ which retarded healing. Have it handy for croup, sore throat and chronic bronchial affections. Get a

Woman's Intuition.

Intuition must be what makes the neighbor women know, after glancing at the beautiful and fashionable new neighbor as she passes that her heliotrope silk stockings undoubtedly are only seconds with defects in the garter-tops which, however slight, of course make a vast difference in the price.—Columbus (Ohio) Journal.

Raw Food Must Be Washed.

"Gritting of sand between the teeth while eating vegetables raw is a certain sign that they have been cleaned improperly, if at all," says the New York Medical Journal, and adds that because of improper washing it is often not safe to eat raw vegetables, salads or fruits.

Helpless As a Baby

Valley Heights, Va.—Mrs. Jennie B. Kirby, in a letter from this place, says: "I was sick in bed for nine months, with womanly troubles. I was so weak and helpless, at times, that I could not raise my head off the pillow. I commenced to take Cardui, and I saw it was helping me, at once. Now I work all day. As a tonic, for weak women, nothing has been found, for fifty years, to I would take the place of Cardui. It will surely do you good. Cardui is prepared from vegetable ingredients, and has a specific curative effect on the womanly organs. Try a bottle today. At your druggist's."—Advertisement.

NEAR UNKING.

"Did you ever notice," said Miss Peachy, "that good-looking people are seldom bright and bright people are seldom good looking?"

"Yes," replied young Knox. "By the way, if you could have your choice, which would you rather be—bright or good looking?"

SO FOOLISH.

THE BULLIES.

I stood on the bridge at midnight, as the clocks were striking the hour; they struck it in cottage and palace, they struck it in cellar and tower. ### WONDERFUL TONIC IS SMILE

Does Wonders in Smoothing Out the Rough Places That Are Met on Life's Journey.

A smile is the bright green carpet of grass that covers the brown earth—the first sign that winter is over, the Telephone News says.

A smile is the rippling softly tinted bloom that covers the erstwhile bare, black limbs of the fruit trees.

A smile is the light, feathery sheen of green that bursts from the brown buds of bush, plant and tree with the first warm rays of the springtime sun.

Like it? Well, here's some more!

A smile is the song of a meadow lark to its mate as together they build their nest.

A smile is the bright warm sunlight after the gentle patterning shower; it changes the very face of nature, transporting the gloom into the joyousness of a wonderful day.

So nature smiles while heavy hearts grow light, and life is new again!

If nature's smile has such a potency, what may we not expect from a smiling human countenance or the human "voice with the smile"?

There's a "Miss Benevolence" at the head of the "Complaint Bureau" of a large institution, so vouchsafes a contemporary who is all but stone deaf! Important points of the bitter and often unreasonable arguments of red-faced, explosive complainers are handed to her on memoranda by a clerk who stands in back and listens. But "Miss Benevolence," all unaware of the stormy words hurled at her, smiles and smiles and smiles. And then smiles some more, with never a smirk, 'till the storm of unreason—and, you know, it's apt as not to be unreason—is over.

And the storm always does pass by, for she never loses that genial composure, but smiles and returns smileful, soft spoken words for wrathful and bitter invective.

Don't think that a mouth with upturned corners denotes weakness or that there's such a thing as being too proud to grin; for you can fight the good fight better when you smile. There was a time when grim visaged, deep chested men once roamed the earth, whose mighty roar set whole cities trembling in their path. But, bless your heart, they have gone the way of all bugbears of the past! The "stuffed club" of benevolence and good humor does most of the winning these days.

SLOAN'S LINIMENT EASES PAIN.

Sloan's Liniment is first thought of mothers for bumps, bruises and strains that are continually happening to children. It quickly penetrates and soothes without rubbing. Cleaner and more effective than messy plasters or ointments. For rheumatic aches, neuralgia pain and that gripping soreness after colds, Sloan's Liniment gives prompt relief. Have a bottle handy for bruises strains, sprains and all external pain. For the thousands whose work calls them outdoors, the pains and aches following exposure are relieved by Sloan's Liniment. ### "LET YOUR LIGHT SHINE."

Let us always remember that hope in us kindles hope in others, that smiles, that trust creates trust, that goodness awakens goodness, that love awakens love, and that in unseen but sure ways integrity, strength and honor in us plant seeds of honor, strength and integrity in numberless other lives, many of whom we may know nothing of.—J. T. Sutherland.

"LOOK OUT FOR THE CARS"

DO YOU know of anyone who is old enough to read, who has not seen that sign at a railroad crossing?

If everyone has seen it at some time or other, then why doesn't the railroad let the sign rot away? Why does the railroad company continue to keep those signs at every crossing?

Maybe you think, Mr. Merchant, "Most everybody knows my store, I don't have to advertise."

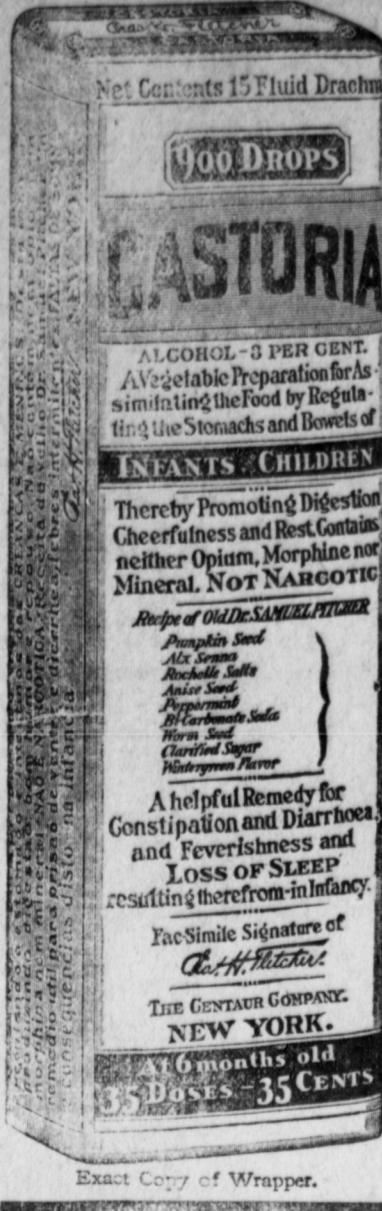

Your store and your goods need more advertising than the railroads need to warn people to "Look Out for the Cars."

Nothing is ever completed in the advertising world.

The Department Stores are a very good example—they are continually advertising—and they are continually doing a good business.

Need of Troops at Murray
For Lube Martin Trial Said to be the Reason.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 16.—Request for the return of three companies of the Kentucky guards, now on the border, has been made to President Wilson by the state administration, and has been referred to the War Department for final action.

Under present conditions it is impossible to recruit guards in the state through their dread of being forced into border service, and the need for troops at Murray last week and the possibility of another emergency when the trial of Lube Martin is called, prompted the request. An early decision is expected from the War Department.

WAR! What Is It All About?

AS the whole world gone stark mad over a very foolish and trivial question? Are swords rattling, cannon rumbling, mailed armour glistening just because Russia wanted to show her love for the little brother—Serbia? Tear aside the curtain of Europe's politics and see the grim and sinister game of chess that is being played. See upon what a slim, yet desperate, excuse the sacred lives of millions are being sacrificed. Read the history of the past one hundred years, as written by some of the greatest authorities the world has ever known, and learn the naked, shameful truth. Just to get you started as a Review of Reviews subscriber, we make you this extraordinary offer. We will give to you

FREE—"Europe at War"

A big book and over 300 pages, size 10 x 7 inches, handsomely and durably bound in cloth, containing the dramatic history of the great events leading up to the present time; over 100 illustrations; special articles by experts on the different phases of the conflict; hundreds of graphic pictures, portraits, photographs, diagrams, specially drawn war maps, illuminating statistical records, copies of old documents and diplomatic notes; exciting between the powers—a clear, vivid, accurate permanent, interesting and valuable record—a record which once seen you will not willingly be without. Europe's past and present are here dramatically pictured and presented. Hundreds of illustrations graphically tell their own stories. More fascinating than any romance, here is a history so vivid, so dramatic, so stirring, so fascinating, so realistic, so wonderfully presented, so thrillingly told that it leaves an ineffable impression.

PURELY PERSONAL*Corns Peel Right Off With "Gets-It"

2 Drops, and the Corn is a "Goner!"

When you've got to walk on the sides of your shoe to get away from those awful corn-pains, there's only one common-sense thing to do.

Use "Gets-It" Your Corns Won't Swell in Water. Besides, They'll Shivel, Loosen and Peel Off!

Put 2 or 3 drops of "Gets-It" on the corn right away. Pain and inflammation will disappear, the corn will begin to shrivel from that instant—then it loosens and falls right off.

There's no other corn-remover in the world that's like "Gets-It." No discovery has been made in corn-removers since "Gets-It" was born. Don't forget that fact. "Gets-It" does away forever with the use of salves that irritate, bandages that make a bundle of your toe, plasters that half do off your toe, and dressings that draw blood. Use "Gets-It" no more digging or cutting. "Gets-It" is sold everywhere. 25c a bottle, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sold in Hopkinsville and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by L. L. ELGIN.

WEDS THE GIRL WHO NURSED HIM

Chesley Adkins Makes Good Promise He Made When He was a Toddler of 6.

Seventeen years ago—more or less—a comely nurse girl in Hopkins county, Ky., listened to the prattle of a little boy whom she was employed to take care of. She was 22. He was 6.

In his child's imagination he pictured the future, as all children do. He saw a picture of himself as a young man, and his nurse, who to him was the most wonderful girl in the world, as his wife.

He told her of his dream. She laughed as he clambered upon her knee and told her he loved her and some day would marry her. She wouldn't believe him.

Yesterday she laughed, but it was a different kind of laugh. Justice Tordank had just pronounced the ceremony that made the boy's dream a reality.

Her name was Miss Linie Fox when she was a nurse girl in Hopkins county, Ky. Now it is Mrs. Chesley Adkins. Both still reside in Hopkins county and will continue to make it their home.—Evansville Courier.

Report on Petroleum.

A publication of considerable general interest now available for free distribution by the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior, is the annual statement on petroleum in 1915. This report presents a review of the yield of crude petroleum and of development in the oil fields of the United States during the year and includes brief notes on the trend of developments in foreign oil fields so far as conditions can be ascertained.

Germany's Terms Next.

A statement of terms from Germany and her allies at least as comprehensive as those set forth by the Entente in replying to President Wilson's note is the next move hoped for in the peace negotiations. If an early reply is not received it is probable that some move will be made to open the way for a German reply.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians. The damage that will be done to the body cannot possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by P. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by P. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists. Price 75c per bottle. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

PROHIBITION DAY.

All over this country a Day of Prayer for National Constitutional Prohibition will be observed by the W. C. T. U. on to-day, January 18th,—also a service of thanksgiving for the wonderful victories for the movement in 1916 and already in 1917! The sweeping decision of the United States Supreme Court in upholding as constitutional and valid the Webb-Kenyon law prohibiting shipments of liquor from wet to dry states is a great cause for rejoicing and thanksgiving, as it is to the fight in the prohibition movement only in importance to the proposed constitutional amendment.

The Union here will have a meeting to-day at the Christian church. A program has been arranged consisting of timely and interesting talks and special temperance music, in addition to the Scripture readings and seasons of prayer. Everybody is very cordially invited to attend—the men are especially asked to come. Several business men of the city will have a part on the program. The teachers and pupils of the City schools are urged to come in the afternoon.

The hours will be from 10 to 12 in the morning and from 2 to 4 in the afternoon.

Mr. Bert Eckert, of the county, underwent an operation Monday, and is doing well.

At the Jennie Stuart Hospital Tuesday night John Lacy, of Lafayette, underwent an operation, which was performed by a surgeon from Nashville. His condition is satisfactory.

Democrats and G. O. P. Even

Washington, Jan. 17.—A list of members of the next house of representatives, prepared by South Trimble, clerk of the house, and made public today, gives 215 democrats, 215 republicans, two progressives, one prohibitionist, one socialist and one independent. The tabulation, which is unofficial, has been held up pending the outcome of close contests, and finally was issued after an announcement that Representative Scully, democrat, of New Jersey, had been re-elected. Republicans, while conceding its accuracy, declared that a final decision that Representative Barchfeld, republican, of Pennsylvania, had been elected would upset the figures. The name of Representative Barchfeld's democratic opponent is given in the list.

SEARCH PARTY

Sent Out In Airplanes To Hunt For Lost Officers.

San Diego, Cal., Jan. 17.—Three military airplanes, each carrying a pilot and observer, started from here this morning on a flight over the mountains to Calexico, Cal., and thence below the border to assist in the search for Lieut. Col. Harry G. Bishop and Lieut. W. A. Robertson, Jr., army aviators, who have been lost since Wednesday. Permission for the aerial expedition was given by Gov. Eztaban Cantu, of Lower Cal. It was officially announced that Bishop and Robertson were without authority in making the flight from here and it was said both would be tried by court martial in the event of their return.

Mackensen Leader of Great Offensives.

One of Hindenburg's principal lieutenants in East Prussia has been August von Mackensen; and to him was assigned the leadership of Germany's next offensive. In May and June, 1915, Austro-German forces under his command met the Russians—who had ridden roughshod over the Austro-Hungarians and were threatening both Vienna and Budapest—and swept them out of Galicia.

No sooner had that task been accomplished than von Mackensen from the south and Hindenburg from the north began a combined move which carried them not only to Warsaw, but 200 miles beyond, occupying the whole of Russian Poland within two months (July 15—September 15, 1915). German official estimates placed the Russian losses in the two campaigns at 300,000 killed and wounded, and 1,100,000 prisoners.

With no rest and little time for preparation, Field Marshal von Mackensen was placed in command of the main army which marched southward through Serbia in October and November, 1915, conquering a whole kingdom and opening a way for the Hindenburg remained the popular idol; but Mackensen, in three great campaigns during a single season, became recognized by most authorities as Germany's greatest military leader.

To his army was given the honor of taking Bucharest, the Rumanian capital, on December 6 (Mackensen's sixtieth birthday), although other armies had made the more spectacular advance. — From "German Military Leaders," in the American Review of Reviews for January, 1917.

THE SOLICITOR

By LOUISE OLIVER.

Ferdinand Weigel put down the slop pails and turned around.

Carrie, breathless and flushed from running, put her hand to her throat. "Say, dad, you're awful deaf. I've been callin' and callin'."

"Hey? Well, what is it? Cribbese want to borrow the mare again? Tell them to walk to town. They lamed her last time."

"No, dad, it ain't Cribbese after the mare. It's Sam Karns. He's back from the city and he's sollicitin'."

"What?"

"He's sollicitin'."

"What's that? After somethin'?"

"Well, sort of. You come on down to the house, won't you, and talk to Sam? It's about a new buildin' in town. He's all dressed up and sittin' on the front porch. Hurry up an' come on, dad."

"All right, I'll be down."

"When did you come back to town, Sam?" Carrie, in her gingham dress, with white collar and cuffs and a dress-up apron, was very pretty. Her hair, corn-colored and wavy, touched off a complexion of roses and cream that reminded Sam of the big bisque dolls in the city windows. Her eyes, with their long, dark lashes, were big and very deep gray.

"I came back last Tuesday. I'm runnin' the campaign."

"Campaign! Oh, are you trying to be elected?"

Sam laughed. "No, it's not politics. I'm an organizer. That's a man who takes charge of things and makes things come that nobody else will bother with. When a town wants a new library or hospital or chamber of commerce building, they send for me. Then I roll up my sleeves and go to work. The old town here wants a library, so that's why I came back, to get them what they wanted. Oh, I'm the man that put the 'g' in get, all right. We're after fifty thousand dollars."

Carrie's eyes were big. "Is that what you're sollicitin' for?"

"Yes."

"He won't give much."

"You just wait and see. I'm after a hundred dollars."

"Goodness!" Her eyes widened. "Why, he won't give me and ma enough money for a new hat."

"But won't it be fine to have a library in town?"

"I wouldn't know what to do with it."

"Why get books and read them. Magazines, too; and all sorts of things. A pretty girl like you wants to know a lot, Carrie."

"I know enough. I can bake the best angel food of any girl in Clark county."

"All right! Maybe you can, but I'll bet you don't know who Shakespeare's contemporaries were."

"What did you say?" she asked bewildered. "Oh, here's dad now."

Sam began instantly. "I came to get your subscription to the new library, Mr. Weigel. You've heard about it, I suppose. Let me see, we've put you down for a beneficent dollars."

"What?" cried the old farmer. "I'll be hamjugged if I will!" He pushed back his chair, crossed his knees and fumbled awkwardly for his pipe. "What's the darned thing for?"

"A library for the country. Books, you know. Books." And then Sam gave a dissertation on the blessings of a library in a tone calculated to waken the mummies in Egypt.

And he got the hundred.

"Goodby, Sam," said Carrie, putting her hand to her smooth, snowy throat.

"Goodby, Carrie," said Sam, and then in a tone which Egyptian mummies could never have heard he leaned forward and said, "I've learned to know what beauty is since I've been away, Carrie, and you're the loveliest thing I've seen in that line ever." He pressed her hand gently—and was gone.

A year passed. Ferdinand Weigel was going for the cows one day when Carrie called, "Dad, oh Dad!"

The old man turned. "Hey? Well, what is it? Cribbese want to—"

"No, it isn't the Cribbese, dad. It's Sam Karns. He wants to see you."

"Wants me to build another library, does he? Well, tell him to go and talk to the chickens. I'm busy. What's he want?"

"I don't know." Carrie smiled and dimpled. "He said to tell you he's sollicitin'." Carrie had picked up on her G's since reading books from the library, and she had found out just what "Shakespeare's contemporaries" meant.

At the head of the hill Carrie and her father met Sam, who came up energetic, irresponsible, smiling. The old man had to acknowledge that his visitor was splendid looking, but nevertheless he retained his scowl.

"How do you do, Mr. Weigel?" said Sam, pleasantly holding out his hand.

"How do?" responded Ferdinand, suspiciously. "What do you want now? Sollicitin' again, Carrie says."

"Yes, I am, Mr. Weigel!"

"What for, now?"

"For Carrie. I want her this time, and she seems to think it's all right."

The old man stroked his whiskers an instant or two with shaking fingers, but he looked his relief.

"Oh," said he, turning away, "is that all? Well, take her away. And God bless both of you. I think I will

FARM STOCK

ROOTS FOR STOCK IN WINTER

Mangels and Turnips Act As Appetizers and Bowel Regulators—Use Care in Feeding.

Most stockmen realize the worth of roots in the winter ration for the cattle, but few recognize the fact that the mangels and turnips may be fed in such a way that much of their value is lost, says a writer in an exchange. Roots act as appetizers and bowel regulators rather than as actual milk producers; hence they should be fed with care. They are largely composed of water, and therefore they use up the heat of the body. For this reason, in extreme cold weather we cut down the usual quantity of roots fed, and on severely cold days we even skip the roots altogether, feeding something else having less water content.

Roots should not be taken from the storage pits or cellars where the temperature is not far from the freezing point, and fed immediately. A better way is to bring them into a heated room for 12 to 24 hours, after which they may be cut and given to the live stock. We like to bring the roots into a warm room in the morning, leaving them until the next morning, when they are cut and fed. Cows that are giving milk should eat the roots just after being milked in the morning.

FATTENING OF BEEF CATTLE

Value of Silage Strongly Emphasized by Indiana Station—Ration for Substantial Gains.

The value of the silo in fattening cattle was strongly emphasized by the Indiana station. In this experiment substantial gains were made on the following ration:

2.5 pounds cottonseed meal.
4.4 pounds clover hay.

14.4 pounds shelled corn.
27.7 pounds corn silage.

When silage was fed the cost of gain was one-half cent a pound less than with dry feed and the increase in profits amounted to from $3 to $8 per steer.

 Splendid Beef Type.

per steer. The cottonseed meal gave much better results than oil meal and tended to produce firmer flesh with silage.

Where there is not an abundance of grazing when cattle are fed the silo will be almost indispensable to economy in feeding. The amount saved in feeding silage will soon pay for the silo. It helps utilize the coarse feeds, and it takes the place of green pasture when this is not available.

CRUDE OIL DESTROYS VERMIN

Oilers Are Cheapest and Most Efficient Means of Ridding Hogs of Harmful Lice.

Hog oilers are the cheapest and most efficient means of ridding the hog of lice, says the veterinary department of the Nebraska College of Agriculture.

One application of crude oil kills both lice and nits. The most convenient method of applying the oil is by means of a hog oiler, of which there are several good types. They are always ready and require little attention. The best oiler allows the pig to rub the oil on any part of the body. The oiler can also be applied with a sprinkler, spray pump, broom, or brush. If there is any indication of skin disease, the parts may be scrubbed with a broom or brush so as to get the oil well into the skin. When crude oil is used, the appearance of skin and hair is greatly improved.

SUNSHINE IN CATTLE STABLE

Animal in Sunlight Takes on Flesh More Readily—Southern Exposure is Favored.

A farmer, whose cattle have always been kept in a stable on the north side of the barn, well lighted and ventilated, had occasion to enlarge his stable, building the extension with a southern exposure, into which the direct rays of the sun were permitted to enter with no obstruction.

He discovered by accident, what he subsequently demonstrated by repeated experience, that the same creature in the sunlight took on flesh more readily, ate less and produced more than when kept in the stable where the direct sunlight never entered.

More than this, he proved conclusively that creatures suffering with various diseases, or reduced physical

THE HEIRLOOM RING

By J. K. WARD.

It was a great disappointment to Frank Lloyd to be obliged to leave Linville with his love for Amy Baker undeclared. But the summons home was imperative. "Your father is seriously ill. Come at once," it said.

So on the afternoon of Frank's departure from Linville Miss Baker received by mail a letter and a registered package. Both were in the same handwriting and after considering for a moment she opened the letter first.

"My dear little Amy," it began. "The sudden and serious illness of my father has called me away from Linville. For reasons which I am sure you must guess, I hate to go, but the call is urgent, for my father has been until recently nearest to my heart. I am sending by this mail my ring, family heirloom. If the love which you must know I feel for you is returned, will you wear the ring until I can replace it with another? When I return, which will be as speedily as possible, if I find the ring on your hand I shall know that my dearest hopes are to be realized. Your devoted lover,

"Frank."

Shyly and reverently Amy drew the curious and valuable ring from its box. For scarcely a moment did she consider before slipping it on her finger. Ever since Frank had arrived at the home of her friends, the Deans, to spend the summer with his college chum Geoffrey, he had occupied first place in her heart, and she had hoped that her love was reciprocated.

Into this perfect bliss came trouble swift and unexpected. The blow fell on a day when Harold, Amy's younger brother, burst into her room with a face on which horror and despair were jointly pictured.

It was the old story of a young man, tempted to gamble, "borrowing" the funds of the institution which employed and trusted him, until the small speculations could be no longer concealed.

Amy listened, white faced, to the pitiless recital.

"It will kill father and mother if you are arrested for stealing," she said.

So Amy's few good jewels were taken from their hiding place, and Harold, chastened and subdued, set out to raise money on them to make good his deficiency before it should be discovered. But the most he could raise fell far short of the sum total he needed, and, with despair at his heart, he wended his way back to where his sister tremblingly awaited him.

"It's no use, little sister," he said. "I shall have to pay the penalty. I can't get near enough on your little trinkets."

Amy bowed her head on her hands, and as she did so her brow touched the betrothal ring on her finger. For only a second she hesitated, then drawing the ring from her finger she handed it to Harold.

"Take it," she said. "It is worth a great deal of money."

Then bursting into tears she turned away from Harold's grateful thanks and sought refuge alone, where she could weep out her heart at the loss of her treasure.

Frank returned unannounced to Linville and went straight to Amy's house. Lights shone from the windows, and as he drew near he could see Amy at the piano. Startled, he gazed at her. One of his closest rivals was bending over her in an attitude of devotion—and Frank's ring was not on her hand.

Seeing, but unseen, he decided that his cause was hopeless, and went as quietly as he had come.

Six months later Frank was called to a city a short distance from Linville. Seeking shelter from a sudden shower in a pawnbroker's doorway, he glanced carelessly at the window display. To his unbounded astonishment he saw his own ring.

He rushed into the shop and asked to see the ring. His judicious questioning brought out the fact that a young man had brought in the ring and other jewelry. From his description Frank had no doubt that Harold had pawned the ring, although examination of the pawnbroker's records gave an entirely different name.

Without loss of time Frank hastened to Linville. He would see Harold and demand the truth. Perhaps—and at the thought his pulses bounded—there was some reason besides indifference for Amy's failure to wear his ring.

He reached the small town at noon, and almost the first person he met was Harold hastening to lunch.

Frank went straight to the point, and Harold, after being convinced that there was a vital reason for the searching question, broke down and admitted that Amy had pawned her jewels to raise money for him. Then in answer to Frank's eager questions he said sadly:

"Amy has changed greatly. Whether it was because of my wrongdoing or not I don't know, but from the day she knew of it her health and spirits failed."

So it happened that when Frank, eager and ardent, entered the Baker drawing room, it was a frail shadow of the former blooming girl that turned a languid head to see who was coming. A few minutes later, however, the pale cheeks had taken on a hue of health, the languidness had disappeared, and a new and more beautiful Amy received Frank's betrothal kiss so long

YOUR LAST CHANCE.

Recently we published in these columns an offer of The Youth's Companion and McCall's Magazine, both for a full year, for only $2.10, including a McCall Dress Pattern. The high price of paper and ink has obliged McCall's Magazine to raise their subscription price February 1 to 10 cents a copy and 75 cents a year—so that the offer at the above price must be withdrawn.

Until March 31 our readers have the privilege of ordering both publications for a full year, including the choice of any 15-cent McCall Dress Pattern, for only $2.10.

The amount of reading, information and entertainment contained in the fifty-two issues of The Youth's Companion and the value of twelve monthly fashion numbers of McCall's at $2.10 offer a real bargain to every reader of this paper.

This two-at-one-price offer includes:

1. The Youth's Companion—52 issues.
2. The Companion Home Calendar for 1917.
3. McCall's Magazine—12 fashion numbers.
4. One 15-cent McCall Pattern—your choice from your first copy of McCall's—if you send a 2-cent stamp with your selection.

Will Be Held In Paducah
Mar. 2.—H. H. S. to Be Represented.

Paducah, Ky., Jan. 17.—The West Kentucky Oratorical contest for the High schools of Western Kentucky will be held in Paducah, March 2, at the Kentucky theater.

It will be the first time Paducah has had the contest in several years. Six other schools will send representatives—Owensboro, Henderson, Hopkinsville, Dawson Springs, Princeton and Madisonville, and the big meet will mean between 300 and 400 visitors in the city, if past contests are a criterion.

This year there will be two medals, one for boys and one for girls, for the first time in the history of the conference. In past years, only boys have competed. The introduction of "equal rights" into the conference is expected to be a feature of this event.

Frank H. Simonds Sums Up the German Peace Proposal.

In a word, I do not believe the Germans proposed peace with any belief that they could impose their will upon Europe absolutely, or save in a degree relatively insignificant as compared with the hopes and proclamations of August, 1914, or even of April, 1916.

On the other hand, I do not believe that the proposal is a sign of absolute surrender of imminent economic collapse. To me it seems rather the result of a shrewd utilization of a recent victory, coupled with an intelligent recognition that the greatest profit of war might have had will not be realized; that reasonable profit is all that Germany can hope for now, and that the German people's desire for peace must be faced.—From "Peace, Politics, and War—A Marvelous Month," by Frank H. Simonds, in the American Review of Reviews for January, 1917.

Black Doe

By H. M. EGERT

(Copyright, 1916, by W. G. Chapman.)

directed at Dunn. Dunn's acquiescence seemed to enrage him. He would have welcomed a chance either for a brawl or for punishment for indiscretion; but Dunn only sat silently, watching Marie wistfully, while the sergeant's eyes were bright with triumph. He felt that he had won, had shown Marie his superiority over Dunn.

They retired to their bunks. They were to start up the trail at daybreak, on the quest for Black Doe. Dunn slept fitfully; he was thinking of Marie, and his heart was full of passionate resentment.

He was the first up, and went to groom the horses. As he came back to the shack he heard Mitchell's voice and the girl's behind the open door. Mitchell had his arm round her waist and was drawing her toward him. Crum was nowhere in sight.

Then Dunn knew what he meant to do. He crept back very softly to the stable and loaded his rifle. He took it in his arms, carrying it as a mother might her first born, and approached the door again.

Mitchell held the girl in his arms now, and she was struggling as he tried to kiss her. Dunn, aiming deliberately, was conscious of the open door at the back of the shack, and a clump of dwarf fir about a hundred yards distant. Then he concentrated his attention upon Mitchell. Carefully he drew a bead on him so as to avoid hitting the girl.

Bang! Mitchell leaped into the air, flung out his arms, and pitched head foremost. Dunn stepped into the shack. There was no need to look more than once at the dead face, or the blood oozing from the head.

Marie ran to Dunn, sobbing wildly. "You did right, the beast!" she cried. "Come with me," said Dunn.

They raced to the stables, and in a moment he had freed the horses, saddled them, and placed her on the sergeant's. In another moment they were galloping across the barrens. At the time Dunn was conscious of wondering where old Dufour and Crum were. But a moment later they heard shouts behind them. They galloped frantically forward, anywhere, so long as they could win free.

Crum was a man of resolution, and Dunn knew that he would take up the chase and never leave it. He reckoned on the fact that Crum's horse was the slowest of the three. The freshly falling snow would hide their tracks if they could win the country across the river bed, where a series of hummocks swelled into the Big Lake mountains.

Far behind him Dunn heard a shout. He turned and looked back as he rode. Crum was standing at the door of the stable, waving his arms to him.

A few minutes later Dunn, looking back, saw Crum mounted and in pursuit of them, a tiny figure upon a tiny horse. They rode madly for the dip toward the river.

"We must be careful," said Marie, as they began the descent. "The rocks are dangerous."

Even as she spoke her horse tripped on a projecting boulder, stumbled, and flung her face downward upon the hard bed of the frozen stream. Dunn leaped from his horse and kneeled beside her. She had been stunned by the fall; she opened her eyes and looked about her half-conscious.

The horse scrambled to its feet, ran up the bank, and raced back toward the stable, followed by Dunn's horse. And Dunn, kneeling at Marie's side, knew that chance had settled his particular problem. And in the distance Crum came on inexorably.

Dunn shrugged his shoulders as one who has played his last card. He carried the girl up to the top of the bank and waited for Crum, who came galloping up on his blown horse. He flung himself to his feet, panting like his steed.

"What's the matter with you, to play this crazy trick after killing him?" he shouted.

Dunn smiled. "I guess you're right, Crum," he said. "Take the girl on your saddle; I'll walk. You can trust me."

Crum, staring at him in apparent perplexity, lifted Marie to the saddle before him. She had fallen into a swoon again. Then he rode slowly back toward the cabin, with Dunn walking a little distance in front of him.

He turned his horse away when near the stable, and went toward the little patch of stunted trees that had struck upon Dunn's attention at the moment when he raised his rifle. Dunn saw the motionless body of a man lying hidden among them. It was Black Doe.

"How did you get him, Dunn?" asked Crum, dismounting and turning the body over. "See! He had just fired. You were in the nick of time."

The dead man's fingers were clenched about the trigger; the rifle had been discharged; over his heart was a bullet wound.

Dunn, unable to speak, accompanied Crum back to the shack. Mitchell lay where he had fallen, and old Dufour was muttering in the corner, as if he did not understand.

"He got poor Mitchell a second before you fired," said Crum. "Over the heart, too. See!"

Dunn looked in horror now mixed with agitation. He saw that track of the bullet through the breast and out under the rib. The missile lay upon the floor beside the inert man. It was a battered .45, such as the Indians use. Dunn's bullet had been a .308. And it had been Black Doe whom he had hit, not Mitchell.
